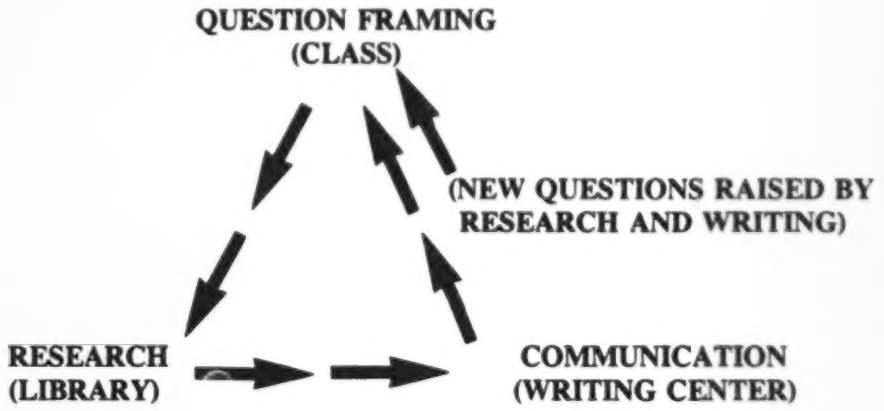
THE SCHOLAR'S TRIANGLE

Scholarly life cannot be reduced to simple steps, but the preparation of a "paper"--long or short, written or for presentation, through other media--includes at least three steps. The Library is only one step in that process, but a very important step. In general, a scholar needs to formulate a question, then research to find some materials which will help answer the question(s), and finally, communicate one's findings in an appropriate form. Very often these three steps parallel three areas of activity at CC: The classroom, the library, and the writing center. The "Scholar's Triangle", pictured below is not a static goal, it is a roadmap of the scholarly process -- from finding an interesting question in class (a few radical souls have even been known to think outside of class) to looking for information at the library, to polishing one's writing (which also tend to polish one's thinking) at the writing center. No one step is sufficient and one goal of liberal arts education is to internalize the Scholar's Triangle for a scholarly life whether in university, business or even the law.



In the humanities and social sciences research often breaks down into 3 parts; how to find sources, how to judge them (what question they can or cannot address, what the bias or the authors might be, etc), and how to interpret the information you have gathered (this leads on to the next step in the process, communication). Thus you will need more than "Just the facts" In particular, you will want to consult opinions of other scholars about the sources you have found. Usually this amounts to locating and reading two or three book reviews of books upon which you rely heavily or "review articles in scholarly journals.

This guide will help you make good use of Tutt Library for research covering Japan. As such, it covers an area not a discipline. Thus, it will guide you to sources in history, religion, art, political science, economics, etc.

ABOUT THE LIBRARY

The following brief descriptions of various aspects of the library are intended to give an overview of its operations and to answer the most commonly encountered questions. For practical assistance and more detailed information, do not hesitate to ask any member of the library staff, particularly the Reference librarians located at the Reference desk, 1st floor north.

Reference Services

The central information point in the library is the Reference Desk. The reference librarians provide help in interpreting the library catalogs, explain the use of indexes and abstracts, and direct you to the most effective use of the library's resources.

A reference librarian is available at the reference desk Monday -Friday, 8:30 AM - 5:00 PM; 6 PM - 10:00 PM; Saturday, 10 AM - 5 PM: Sunday, 9 AM - 12 PM. If the reference librarian is not at the desk, please check with the circulation desk. The reference staff is here to help you use the library, please do not hesitate to ask questions. 389-6662

Interlibrary Loan

The Interlibrary Loan staff locates and borrows materials not available at Tutt Library and in turn loans materials to other institutions requesting them for their patrons. This service is provided to all CC students, faculty and staff.

If you need material not owned by Tutt Library, the librarians at the reference desk will give assistance to help you obtain needed materials. Request forms are located outside the Interlibrary Loan Office. Under most circumstances there is no charge for this service. Plan ahead because requests take up to 2 weeks.
389-6664.

Computer Assisted Research

Computer assisted research is a method of locating relevant articles over the phone lines (online) by electronically looking through indexes and abstracts. Online searching speeds up the process of finding the books, magazines, and newspapers that contain articles on your topic.

The reference department has access to more than 300 machine readable databases which serve as indexes and abstracts to journal articles, books and other publications. For more information about the specific databases and fees charged, inquire at the reference desk.

A few databases are available for student performed searching in the evenings and on weekends. This service is called Knowledge Index and is free to students. A reference librarian will provide simple training and "log" you into databases such as Humanities Index, MLA Bibliography, and National Newspaper Index. 389-6662.

Other Libraries

Tutt Library, though an extremely good library for a small liberal arts college, cannot possibly provide all sources needed for extensive research projects. From time to time you may need to consult another library in the state to utilize their books or periodicals.

Check with the reference desk to obtain the hours and current reciprocal borrowing arrangements of other libraries in the area. The most useful libraries are those in Colorado Springs; such as University of Colorado at Colorado Springs (UCCS), The Air Force Academy, and the public library. Other collections of note are at the University of Colorado-Boulder and the University of Denver. Take into consideration that the time limitations of the Block Plan dictate that topics should generally be chosen that can be supported by the resources at Tutt.

It is possible to "dial-in" to many Colorado library catalogs to check their exact holdings. A computer terminal in the reference area is dedicated to "Other library" searching. Instructions for using these catalogs are posted near this terminal. The reference librarian is always available for assistance. Periodical holdings lists from many area libraries are located on a table outside of the 1st floor Interlibrary Loan office. It is always best to check the "Other library" terminal or the periodical holdings list of other libraries before making a trip to another library. Another libraries holdings for a topic may not be any greater than Tutt's.

HOW TO FIND A BOOK

The major information resource of the library is the book collection. The book collection has been chosen by faculty and librarians to support the college programs and to provide supplementary information. Use the online CAT first before using the card catalog. A loose rule is that newer material (1977-) is in the CAT and older material is still listed in the card catalog. Books found in the CAT are not listed in the card catalog and books found in the card catalog are not listed in the CAT.

Consult the Library of Congress Subject Headings volumes as an aid to the correct subject used in the catalogs. Examples of possible subject headings are:

Japan - History
Japanese Art
Geography - Korea
Korean literature

Japanese management
SEE Industrial management-Japan

REMEMBER -IT IS NECESSARY TO USE BOTH THE CAT (THE ON-LINE CATALOG) AND THE CARD CATALOG TO ACCESS BOOKS IN TUTT LIBRARY.

"The Cat"

Begin your search for a book in THE CAT. It is the on-line catalog of Tutt Library. The most recent materials received by the library are listed here. Older materials are being added to the database on a regular basis.

Terminals are located throughout the library with the largest concentration in the reference area on the 1st floor. Press the green START OVER KEY to return to the main menu. Select the help option on the menu if you are a first time user. Instruction in the use of THE CAT is available at the Reference Desk.

The Card Catalog

If you do not find what you are looking for in THE CAT please consult the card catalog. There is no overlap between the two systems. Materials are being moved from the card catalog to THE CAT on a regular basis, but many books are still listed in the card catalog. Imagine how silly you will feel if you travel to Boulder to get a book that was at Tutt all along.

Call Numbers

Library of Congress (LC) Classification

Most books listed in THE CAT are given LC classification numbers. The LC number looks like this:

DS
31
.W3

Books on Japan in general are found under DS 800 - 899 and the books on Korea in general are found under DS 900 - 999. Reference books on Japan and Northeast Asia are found in the "DS" area of the reference stacks (to the left of the circulation desk.)

Dewey Decimal Classification

Older material or material not found in THE CAT are still classified in the Dewey Decimal System. Dewey numbers look like this: 332.42
G45p

HOW TO FIND A PERIODICAL ARTICLE

The most recent, as well as most detailed, information on questions you wish to research are often found in scholarly journals, magazines, newspapers, and other periodicals.

Periodical Indexes

Topics in periodicals are accessible through the use of general and topical periodical indexes. The library subscribes to over 100 indexes. They are located in the area behind the reference desk, 1st floor north. They are arranged by broad subject areas. A list of these indexes is found at the end of the Tutt Library Catalog of Serials.

Some indexes like (like Humanities Index or Social Science Index) provide you with full bibliographic information with each entry:

title of article — name of periodical

Japan's new generation of writers. E. Sakurai. World Lit Today
62:403-7 Summ '88
vol. pages date — author

Other indexes (like Historical Abstracts) provide the bibliographic information and a short abstract or summary of the article. Several steps may be involved to reach this final information.

subject index:

(1st vol.)

Asia, Northeast. Capitalism. Economic Development. Social Change. 1840-1910. 7186

(See also "Computer Assisted Research", p. 3 and "Periodical Indexes", p.15)

Once you have located a periodical title you will need to check that title against the Tutt Periodical Holdings List. These lists are located through out the periodical index section. One copy is always at the reference desk.

The Holdings List provides you with the periodical's location and format. Most periodicals are located on the 2nd floor in one of three places, bound or current periodicals, microfilm, or microfiche. The microfiche and microfilm are located in cabinets in an alcove on the second floor north. Bound and current periodicals are located around the perimeter of the second floor north. Most periodicals are indexed in at least one source. A key to the abbreviations listed in the holdings list is found in the front cover.

Periodicals are shelved in alphabetical order in all formats. A few periodicals may be located in other locations ie., Government Documents or Special Collections.

SELECTED REFERENCE SOURCES ON JAPAN AND SOUTHEAST ASIA

This is not a definitive list of all the reference materials available in Tutt about Japan and Northeast Asia. Please check THE CAT and the card catalog under the subject heading "Japan" or under a specific topic with Japan as the subheading, ie., Art-Japanese or Music-Japanese. Sub-headings, such as, "bibliography", "sources", "guides", may be helpful. The same holds true for "Korea". "East Asia" is a broader topic might also be consulted.

Periodical Indexes

The easiest method to locate periodical is to use a subject index. The reference collection at Tutt Library contains indexes that cover most academic disciplines. The most widely known index to periodical articles is Readers' Guide. Readers' Guide is not the appropriate index to use for locating scholarly articles. Listed below are some excellent starting points in your search for articles written in journals, not popular magazines. Consult the reference librarian for more specific indexes.

Art Index. 1929- Quarterly with annual cumulations.

Indexes American and foreign periodicals relating to art, architecture, photography, films, design, and related fields. Articles are arranged by subject and under author. Book reviews are listed under a seperate section followin the main body of the index. See also RILA , another major art abstract located in the index section.

Historical Abstracts. 1955 - Monthly.

Indexes scholarly journals in history. Monthly indexes with annual cumulative index. Some 5 year cumulative indexes.

Humanities Index. 1974- Quarterly with annual cumulations.

Author and subject entries to articles in 300 English-language periodicals relating to the humanities, ie., art, history, philosophy, religion, etc. A separate section of book reviews appears at the end of each issue.

Index of Economic Articles. 1961- annual with quarterly updates.

Lists articles in English from the principal economics journals, volumes of collective essays, and conference reports. It is arranged by a detailed classification scheme outlined in the front of the volume. An author and broad subject category index is found in the back of each volume. It is updated by the "New Books" and "Subject index of articles in current periodicals" section of the Journal of Economic Literature which is found in the periodicals section (both bound and unbound) of the library.

Social Sciences Index. 1974- Quarterly with annual cumulations .

See also Bibliography of Asian Studies (under "Bibliographies" above) which indexes both scholarly articles and books.

Book Review Indexes

Other indexes that cover specific subject areas may be found in the index stacks ie., Art Index, General Science Index, Education Index, etc. Though many of the indexes also include a book review section, such as the Humanities Index, Tutt Library has several that index only book reviews.

Book Review Digest 1905- Monthly with annual cumulation.
To qualify for inclusion a book must have been published or distributed in the United States. Books are entered under author and each entry gives a brief descriptive note, quotations from selected reviews with references to the periodicals in which the reviews appeared, and references only to other reviews. Indicates length of review.

Book Review Index 1965- Bimonthly with annual cumulation.
Master cumulation covers 1969-79.
Author and title index. Indexes reviews in 450 periodicals.

Index to Book Reviews in the Humanities. 1960- Annual.
Several thousand books titles are included in each issue. Up until 1970 "humanities" included history but after that date the term is more restricted.

The clever scholar knows that many scholarly journals contain hundreds of scholarly book reviews in each issue (see "Periodicals" below). Serious scholars make it a habit to browse recent issues of journals that cover their topics of interest to see what new articles and books have been published.

Periodicals

Some of the most current information on a topic will be found in magazines or journals. College research should be focused on the information found in the scholarly journals of each field, ie., the articles are written by an expert in the field, there is a bibliography at the end of the article, and the journal is cited by other "experts" in the field.

Periodical articles will be found in a variety of journal titles. Listed below are a few journals which focus specifically on Japan or Asia. Do not neglect journals which focus on a topic (ie., art, science, political science, etc.) as opposed to the geographic area; ex.: World Politics, American Historical Review, Art Journal, Religious Studies Review.

Newspapers and Newspaper Indexes

Newspapers provide information on current topics which may not be covered in the monograph collection. They provide an excellent representation of popular opinion during a particular historical period. The most valuable source is the New York Times. The library owns the index and the microfilm for the years 1851 - present. Newspaper indexes also provide a rough chronology of events for a certain year. The newspaper indexes are located in the Microform Alcove, 2nd floor N.

New York Times 1851- Microfilm Cabinets, 2nd floor.
Christian Science Monitor 1987- Microfilm Cabinets, 2nd floor.

Video monitors for individual and small group viewing are located on the Second Floor N. The large video screening rooms are reserved for class use only. Video tapes are listed by title only in the CAT and a printed list available on the online CAT table. Videotapes may be checked out from the circulation desk for use in the library carrels) or for overnight use. There is no charge but a $10 late fee is enforced.
